It was first released for browsers and Android in 2014 for iOS (published by Kongregate), Microsoft Windows, OS X and Linux in 2015, and for PlayStation 4 in 2016. AdVenture Capitalist allows players to live as a capitalist and invest funds in certain products to generate revenue, starting with a single lemonade stand. The more revenue generated, the more players' money. A player can get an angelic bonus when resetting their progress, which provides an increase in the revenue of all products for the next progress timeline. New areas of business have been added since the game came out, allowing real estate purchases on the moon and Mars. The spin-off, AdVenture Communist, was released on Steam as an early approach to the 10th [2] Gameplay There are three areas: Earth, moon and Mars. The player starts on Earth with one investment: a lemonade stand. Tapping rewards money over time. When enough money is made, more stalls can be purchased. Saving allows you to buy different investments at the cost of more time until payment. Once managers are hired to invest, they will automatically launch, allowing for a successful smug game, even when offline. Upgrades can be purchased to add multipliers to any investment. When a player reaches $1 trillion on Earth, he can start investing in a new area. After investing, the area will be unlocked in 72 hours, but the process can be accelerated using video advertisements, angel investors/mega dollars or gold. Gold can be purchased through in-app purchases with real money and can be used for purposes such as getting an investor angel without resetting, immediately making money for a day off and more. Mega Bucks are purchased starting from 1 decillion currency area, and their price is multiplied after purchase with fixed steps (the game describes this as inflation). When a player has 10 Mega Bucks, they can buy a golden ticket, which when used on a single investment permanently increases its profit by ×7.77 dollars. Once one has boosted the entire planet, it will get an additional boost of ×10, which adds (don't multiply) × $17.77. This multiplier can be further upgraded using Mega Bucks. As of October 2015, players can also play a limited time for a special event, usually around holidays and other events, such as Halloween or Black Friday. They occur once a month for several days. These events are topics like three areas, have their own set of businesses and upgrades, but are only available during that event. If a player reaches at least one of the goals of that event, they will receive a badge displayed on the Swag & Stats page. As the player advances in some events, they can acquire free gold or Mega Bucks based on unlocking, even a special badge that provides investment-specific incentives when equipped. Events are recycled, so if a player missed a past event, they will have a second chance to complete the tasks. In general, these events last anywhere from three days to a week. Since the update to The Love Of Money, the 'Swag & Stats' section has been renamed 'Career', along with the option to make the player's character female. ReceptionReview ResultsPublicationScorePocket Gamer3/10[3]148Apps[4]Push Square6.3/10[5] AdVenture Capitalist received mostly negative or mixed reviews from critics. Pocket Gamer criticized the game for having provided little reward for progress and declared that achievements are boring. [3] The review also found that in-app purchases are too expensive, calling the game a pointless waste of time and not much adventure. A review from 148Apps had similar opinions, calling the game an optimistic but waste of time. [4] AdVenture Communist AdVenture Communist is a spin-off of AdVenture Capitalist, published on Steam on 10 October 2015. The aim of the game is to manage a false communist state and become more powerful by purchasing different resource-producing productions. In particular, there are five industries that all act as a different currency: potatoes, country, walnut, military and placebo. These different currencies must be managed separately, with the exception that they all cost comrades (which are automatically replenished) regardless of industry. As of December 2, 2018, the game has more than five million installations across all platforms. [7] Reviews of AdVentura Communist have received generally positive reviews, but has been criticised for being too similar to its predecessor and overuse of microtransactions. [8] Edamame Reviews gave game 8.8 out of 10, marking it as awesome. As of August 31, 2020, game reviews on Steam mark it as mixed. [6] References ^ AdVenture Communist. Steam. Traditionally, each unlock is equally arranged from the next, with some variations. At the beginning of the Earth, for all investments except Newspapers, unlocking will double the investment speed for the first 6 unlocks. 7. Unlocking will continue to multiply investment in terms of profits instead of speed. The amount with which it is multiplied usually depends on whether unlocking happens to land on a significant number of that investment, such as 1000, 5000, etc. Unlocking for certain amounts of all investments will initially double the speed of all investments, until the 7th unlock, where they will then double profits instead of the speed of earnings. Newspapers have more complex unlock patterns. The first 3 unlock double speed, but unlocking the process creates a pattern of multiplying the profits of other investments instead of yourself. To ensure this, unlocks are found in 25 newspapers each up to 1,250 newspapers, where it becomes 50, and 2,000 newspapers, where it becomes 100. Sometimes, unlocks can have a massive profit boost, for example, when you reach 1,000 news deliveries, its profits multiply by a ridiculous 7,777,777. Edit Upgrades upgrades increase profits by adding revenue multipliers to businesses. Like other planets, there are three categories of upgrades on Earth: Cash Upgrades, which are bought with money, Angel Upgrades, which are purchased by sacrificing Angel Investors, and Gold Upgrades, which are purchased with Gold. The moon costs $100 trillion to unlock and Mars, 100 Mega Bucks. They offer a slightly different experience of capitalism because going to another planet does not harm the game on Earth, as the player can easily switch back and forth between bodies.
